

The Allergy

Bob's allergy to dogs was most pronounced during nights of the full moon, when wild strands of gossamer fur sprouted from his epidermis. This led some worrywarts to speculate that he was less of an allergy sufferer than he was a lycanthrope. Still, if Bob kept any wolfish behavior to himself and didn't shed his fur on, say, the next-door neighbor's property, why should anybody care?!