

A Hard Fiscal Choice

Because of diminishing tax revenues, the Bung Hollow City Council city has had to make some hard fiscal choices of late. One controversial decision was to not fill the positions of eight retiring patrolmen, which prompted a group of citizens to express concern over the shrinking police department. But Chief Dinklaker assured them that a shrunken officer—such as Constable Cassowary here—was every bit as able to fulfill his duties as a normal sized policeperson. Usually. Sometimes.