

Heimlich's Maneuver

The Heimlich maneuver was spontaneously invented by Mesopotamian politician Hammurabi Heimlich as he tried to rid the parliament of an “obstructing foreign body” during a heated debate over legislation to anthropomorphize tiny shrimp-like marine crustaceans by granting them voting rights – the so-called “Krill or be Krilled Bill.” Only later was it employed to rid the human airway of obstructing foreign bodies.