

Don't Nudge the Judge!

Everyone in Bung Hole County dreaded Judge Judy Dinklaker's Traffic Court, and with good reason. No matter she was a disbarred nurse, Judge Dinklaker injected each person who appeared before her, including citing officers and the bailiff, with sodium pentothal, the so-called "truth serum." She claimed that listening to fibbers all day wasted taxpayer dollars. Last year, a county commissioner tried to put an end to her methods by producing a study that showed narcoanalysis to be unreliable. Of course, he, too, had to submit to an injection before arguing his case, and the judge merely substituted curare for the barbiturate. He's still paralyzed from the nose on down and, apparently, got the message: "Don't nudge the Judge!"
