

Point, Shoot, and Cheer

Nora, Harmony, Edith, Meg, Daisy, Primrose, and Terpsichore constituted the Dinklaker High School cheerleaders. They were also excellent markswomen, which is why, unlike squads from opposing schools, the “Dinky Devils” never had to engage in embarrassing histrionics or back flips to get spectators at the school’s football games to root for the home team. Like the autofocus compact camera after which the school had been named, they merely had to point and, if necessary, shoot.
