

The Remedy

The Dinklaker Academy of Driver Training nearly had to shut down last week. Due to an unlucky coincidence, all of its teaching cars were in the shop for repairs at the same time. But Everett Dinklaker himself devised a remedy so agreeable that some of the pupils *demand*ed to finish their training on the pipeline behind the school. Pango Pringler – shown here in the middle – even earned an A on the parallel parking part of the course.