

Show and Tell Day

Lucille came from a privileged family and she knew it. She always wore the best dress or ate the nicest bowl of haggis with the shiniest spoon or owned the most fragrant collection of scratch 'n sniff patches. Naturally, she had to have the biggest ant farm, too. However, this need backfired on Lucille when she tried to take one of the ants to school for Show and Tell Day. When the critter escaped from the enclosure, she and her classmates learned firsthand that bigger is not always better, especially when bigger also means “carnivorous.”
