

Staying Up

Although Michelle Kwan is the most decorated figure skater in U.S. history, success did not come easy to her. In her early years, she even had difficulty staying upright on her own. But her dad invented an ingenious miniature dirigible attachment that solved that problem. Plus she was later able to re-purpose the helium when she retired from figure skating to become spokesperson for Dinklaker Cryogenics – which is, of course, another story.